

ABSTRACT

A method for assessing the value of a company's intellectual property comprising the steps of gathering intellectual property data, performing an assessment of the intellectual property data and generating a report based on the assessment of the intellectual property data. A system and computer program product for assessing the value of a company's intellectual property comprising means for gathering intellectual property data, means for performing an assessment of the intellectual property data and means for generating a report based on the assessment of the intellectual property data.